Veronica Tawhai & Te Rina Warren are Massey University lecturers with particular expertise in indigenous studies and Te Tiriti o Waitangi. Their presentation is about the Treaty in the context of Te Whāriki.

Mari Ropata-Te Hei is also a Massey University lecturer. With graphic designer, Te Iwihoko Rangihirawea, Mari developed the updated whāriki graphic and cover. Mari will share the significance of the design.

Brenda Soutar is a leader at Mana Tamariki in Palmerston North. She was a member of the writing team for the update of Te Whāriki.

Brenda will present Ngā Whakataukī kei Te Whāriki - The Proverbs in Te Whāriki and how these can be utilised to strengthen documentation of children's learning.

We have 27 years experience designing and implementing high-quality Māori language immersion education. Our most recent ERO review noted the high-quality resources to support children learning in te reo Māori developed by our teachers. "Assessment information is gathered in a range of ways to demonstrate learning. Paki ako (learning stories) have been developed in the kōhanga reo and are used extensively to monitor learning, inform programme planning and as the basis of action research topics for kaimahi.
