

Phoebe Has a Sore finger

Sept. 2015

By Wendy

This morning Phoebe came inside crying. Olivia you immediately went to her and asked “what’s happened?” She pointed out one finger. “Did you hurt your finger?” Phoebe nodded in tears. You then told me loudly “She hurt her finger and she need ice pack.” While I was getting the ice pack, you held Phoebe to you and cuddled her. She stopped crying and looked soothed even before we applied the ice pack to her sore finger.

What might Olivia have learnt in the story?

Olivia you showed love and kindness to Phoebe today. You are very sensitive to other people’s feelings and are becoming more and more responsibility for other’s well-being. I loved seeing the gentle cuddle you gave to Phoebe. I don’t think it was the ice pack that helped her feel better – it was your love that did the trick.

Parents’ voices:

